Chapter 3 THE BEGINNINGS IN THE UNITED STATES

The roots of American government reach deep into the past. Our system of government did not suddenly spring into being as at the wave of some political magician's wand. Nor was it pulled out of thin air by the

The Colonial Period

Our English Heritage. The French, Spanish, Dutch, Norwegian, and other Europeans settled in parts of what was to become the United States. But it was the English who came in the largest numbers. And it was the English who came to control the thirteen colonies that stretched for 1,300 miles along the Atlantic seaboard.

These early pioneers who cleared the wilderness and fought off the Indians had to look out their own future in the New World. But they came here in search of greater freedom.

Founding Fathers at Philadelphia in the summer of 1787. Here, it is believed, they developed through long centuries of experience, tradition, thought, and ideal. We shall now review the foundations of these beginnings.

When men first brought with them, as we shall see, the political culture with them, the government that they brought with them was not a new one. It was a government that had been working and developing in England for hundreds of years. There, in the long history of England, that culture had developed and grown. It was a culture that was based on the idea of the rights of the individual. It was a culture that was based on the idea of the rights of the citizen. It was a culture that was based on the idea of the rights of the people.

SETTLERS AT WORK

Early Americans had to live together in harmony, or they would not survive. This was called "government in order to live," the beginning of our government today.

of which are to be found today—country, language, law, church, custom, and justice of the peace, for example. And all of these were well-known in England long before the first Englishman ever heard of America.

(1.) The Twin Concepts of Limited Government and Civil Liberties. They brought with them, too, the twin ideas of limited government and civil liberties. That is, that government is limited in what it may do, and we, the people, have certain rights that government cannot injure or take away. These great principles of freedom were proclaimed in such historic English documents as the Magna Carta in 1215, the Petition of Right in 1628, and the Bill of Rights and the Act of Toleration of 1689.

(2.) The Concept of Representative Government. A third vitally important concept brought to America in English ships was that of representative government. For centuries there had been developing in England the

PROPHECY

The sky is clear, the sun is shining, and the year is 1972. It is a perfect day to make a brief tour of the world. I'll bet the graduating class of 1962 from Seneca Public School wouldn't care if we stopped to visit each of them for a few minutes. Some local TV programs are being televised only a few blocks down the street. I am sure the company wouldn't mind if we borrowed one of their candid cameras for a few hours.

Now all we have to do is focus the camera right. Look! There's a picture coming in now. It's the battleship Arizona on the Pacific. Down on the main deck stand Dan Clements and Donnie Grollmes flashing some sort of signals to a neighboring ship. They seem to be doing a pretty good job too.

While in the area, let's look around. Now our camera is turning to the Hawaiian Islands where a group seems to be gathered on the beach. Why, right in the middle of the group is Pam Buetzer giving hulla lessons. Evidently this is part of her instruction in physical education at the University of Hawaii.

Now, let's turn our camera toward the U.S. where we can witness the "Twist" being done by Karen Cunningham at the Arthur Miller Dance Studio. (The classes have just been postponed due to the instructor having a dislocated hip and back.) While we're so close here in Los Angeles, we can't miss visiting the Mademoiselles Luginbill and Stowell Hair Salon. They seem to be creating a new hair style which they have named jokingly the "Shy Eye Look."

There's Joan Boltz giving the former Helen Huber and Jean McKee some hints on keeping house, raising a family, and the two ways of using a rolling pin.

We seem to be having some trouble with the picture. Oh, Oh, there's our trouble. Wayne Crandall has just signed a one year contract to play basketball at Ohio State. Now in the other part of the building Donnie Faunce has turned head coach for the team. We'd better move on before the fireworks start between the two classmates.

In an elementary school nearby, Sharon Slocum seems to be teaching kindergarten to one of her classmate's twin boys. Kenny Heidemen's boys sure look like their father.

Now let's focus our camera on the southeast part of the U.S. There in the sun is LeRoy Swogger sketching a picture of a famous actress, Kay Shaw. Both seem to be getting along in this world very fine. By the way, the Orange Bowl game is scheduled to be played at Jacksonville in a few weeks. Kenny Wichman is the captain of the starting team. Seems everyone's quiet when he speaks (can't say I blame them).

Our camera is suddenly changed to the foreign country of the Union of South Africa where we spy Bill Shockey heading a hunt for elephants. Bill says he is going to get that white elephant or will die trying.

Now we're looking in on Paris where the famous artist, Douglas Troughton has just stopped long enough to give his former classmate, Shirley Reed some tips on painting the Eiffel Tower. Both sure have grown taller. Look! One of our pictures is giving us a glimpse of South America where Mary Shockey is looking for a cure for the disease of cancer. I'm sure everyone is wishing her luck.

Back to the United States and a final look at some of our friends. Say, isn't that Glenda Wichman? She seems to be making some headway as the secretary to the president of the United Banker's Association in New York. Look again, there's Fleta Palmer judging the Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City. Seems to be doing a good job.

Gosh. Our camera has about gone dead. But we have time to see one more classmate, Ronnie Keithley. He is seated at this desk looking over his net profit from his auto car sales.

I hope our camera hasn't been worked too hard. As you can see, the entire class of '62 has been making some progress in the last ten years, and with good luck, good health, and God's blessing, we hope the future ones will be even brighter.

ETERNAL FLOWERS

Oh God and Father of us all,
Our souls are crushed today;
The bud that might have bloomed a rose
Is gone for e'er they say.

We wonder why it should be plucked
E'er it had bloomed so fair,
Why must thou take it from its place
And leave the spot most bare.

Our hearts cry out for its return,
Yet know that cannot be;
Oh! Tell us now why we must loose
This bud eternally.

Oh! Children dear I build for you
A mansion fair and wide,
Where you may find eternal rest
And peace of soul inside;

To brighten up this building rare,
A score of flowers you'll see,
And this small bud that I have plucked,
Blooms there eternally.
